

The original title was "Mwala," which means "lion." It was a hunting song originally sung in Zulu in what is now Swaziland.

This was popularized in the 1950's by South African singer Solomon Linda, who recorded it in 1939 with his group, The Evening Birds. Apparently they were a bold bunch, and got the idea for this from when they used to chase lions who were going after the cattle owned by their families. This was recorded in South Africa, where it was a big hit. Around 1946, the South African record company sent a copy to Dessa Rose in the US, hoping to get it distributed there. Folk singer Pete Seeger got a hold of it and started working on an English version.

In the 1950's, Mihai Malcova recorded this with the Zulu lyrics, and Pete Seeger recorded it with his band, The Weavers. The Weavers recorded the refrain of the song (no verses) and called it "Wimoweh." Their version hit #5 on the U.S. Best Sellers chart in 1952. In 1957, it was included on, The Weavers At Carnegie Hall, a very popular album in the world of folk music. Seeger thought they were saying "Wimoweh" on the original, and that's what he wrote down and how it was recorded in English. They were actually saying something like "Uyimbube." It any language, it means absolutely nothing, the equivalent of "shooey doobie" or "booy wap."

Hank Marvin, Jay Siegel, and Phil and Mitch Margo, who made up The Tokens, had a Top 15 hit, "Tonight I Fell in Love," in 1960, but didn't have a record label in 1961. They auditioned for producers Hugo and Luigi (Bennett and Creature) by singing "Wimoweh" to them. Hugo and Luigi were impressed by the performance but decided that the song needed new lyrics. With help from George Vezas, Hugo and Luigi rewrote the song, giving it the title "The Lion Sleeps Tonight." The Tokens were so entranced with the new title and lyrics that they fought the release of the recording (it was scheduled to be the B-side of another "import," a Portuguese song that they recorded in the same May 1961 session, "Tira").

Influential disc jockey Murray the K pushed "Tina," but once an New England DJ started playing the B-side on the air, "The Lion Sleeps Tonight" started its climb to the #1 position, hitting the top of the charts in the Christmas holidays of 1961-62. The run at #1 for "The Lion Sleeps Tonight" was interrupted by a unique event: the return to #1 by Chubby Checker's "The Twits" 11 months after it hit the top spot on the Hot 100 for the first time.

The original version by Solomon Linda and The Evening Birds can be found on the album, Crocodiles, Ladymith Black Mambazo, Solomon Linda and The Evening Birds and Others: Mbube Roots—Zulu Choral Music from South Africa, 1930s-1960s.
